

Disclaimer

The American Association of Notaries is not a law office, and its employees are not acting as your attorney. The American Association of Notaries does not practice law, and does not give legal advice. This Web site is not a substitute for the legal advice of legal counsel. Because the law differs from jurisdiction to jurisdiction, and may be interpreted or applied differently depending on your location or situation, the information on this Web site is not a substitute for the advice of legal counsel. If legal advice or other expert assistance is required, please consult with an attorney.

Furthermore, the notary information contained in this Web site, is provided only for informational and educational purposes. The American Association of Notaries attempts to provide quality information, but makes no claims, promises or guarantees about the accuracy, completeness, or adequacy of the information contained in or linked to this Web site and its associated sites. Internet subscribers and online readers should not act upon this information without consulting with an attorney.

Except where expressly provided otherwise by the American Association of Notaries, the materials on this web site are provided "as is", are experimental, and are for commercial use only, and the American Association of Notaries hereby disclaims all express or implied representations, warranties, guaranties, and conditions, including but not limited to any implied warranties or conditions of merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, title and non-infringement, except to the extent that such disclaimers are held to be legally invalid. The American Association of Notaries makes no representations, warranties, guaranties, or conditions as to the quality, suitability, truth, accuracy, or completeness of any of the materials contained on this web site.

The American Association of Notaries shall not be liable for any damages suffered as a result of using, modifying, contributing, copying, distributing, or downloading the materials. in no event shall the American Association of Notaries be liable for any indirect, punitive, special, incidental, or consequential damage (including but not limited to loss of business, revenue, profits, use, data or other economic advantage), however it arises, whether in an action of contract, negligence or other tortuous action, arising out of or in connection with the use or performance of information available from this web site, even if has been previously advised of the possibility of such damage. you have sole responsibility for the adequate protection and backup of data and/or equipment used in connection with the web site and you will not make a claim against the American Association of Notaries for lost data, re-run time, inaccurate output, work delays, or lost profits resulting from the use of the materials. you agree to hold the American Association of Notaries harmless from, and you covenant not to sue for, any claims based on or related to the use of this web site.

Last updated on 03/12/2009